ROOSEVELT ADVISED PURCHASE OF ROAD

CHARLES S. MELLON OF THE NEW HAVEN SAYS FORMER PRESIDENT SAID BUY B. & M.

Government Not Allowed to Show Corruption of Massachusetts Legislature.

By The Associated Press.
New York, Nov. 22.—Theodore Roosevelt as president of the United States again appeared as adviser of Charles S. Mellon in New Haven affairs—the acquisition of the Boston and Maine railroad—in testimony adduced today at the trial of the eleven former directors of the New Haven road under the Sherman anti-trust law.

Mellon represented the former president as having in 1907 advised the purchase of the Boston and Maine with the reservation, however, that "if you do wrong you need not come back to me." The advice was given after Mellon had had an interview at Roosevelt's suggestion, with Franklin K.

An Everyday Cake

Here is a simple and inexpensive cake that can be varied in many ways with different frostings and icings. It looks a little nicer baked in a tube pan, but will be equally as good baked in a square loaf.

K C Gold Cake

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

1 cup butter; 1 cup sugar; yolks of 4 eggs, beaten light; 1 cup flour, less 2 level tablespoons; 2 level teaspoonsful K C Baking Powder; 1 cup milk; grated rind of 1 orange.

Sift flour and baking powder together three times; cream butter and sugar, beat yolks of eggs, add these to creamed mixture, and lastly add the moisture and flour alternately, beating batter until smooth. Gold Cake can only be made successfully by beating yolks of eggs, very, very creamy and light lemon colored, using a rotary beater. The rotary beater is the only beater that will do justice to the yolks of eggs. The beating kills all egg taste and improves the texture of the cake.

Cocoanut Frosting

Beat the whites of 2 eggs dry; gradually beat in half a cup of sifted confectioner's sugar and continue the beating until the frosting is smooth, thick and glossy; then beat in grated cocoanut, fresh or prepared, and spread upon the cake. This frosting is made thick by beating rather than by sugar.

Save this recipe. You will want to use it frequently. Or better, send us the colored certificate packed in each 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder and we will mail you "The Cook's Book" containing this and 89 other baking recipes equally good—all by Mrs. Hill. Jacques Mfg. Co., Chicago.

LITTLE'S ACQUITTAL DISPLEASES DANIELS

SECRETARY OF NAVY FINDS FAULT WITH VERDICT IN CASE AGAINST REAR ADMIRAL.

WILL HOLD NO OTHER TRIAL

Desires to Impress Necessity of Older Officers Listening to Their Juniors.

By The Associated Press.

Washington, Nov. 22.—Secretary Daniels today disapproved the findings of the general courtmartial which acquitted Rear Admiral William N. Little, retired, of charges of negligence in connection with his duty as inspector during the construction of the submarine K-2. No new trial, however, will be ordered.

A statement issued by the department said that in view of the expense of further proceedings and the admitted personal and official integrity of Admiral Little, the findings merely had been disapproved without reconvening the court.

"An important sidelight upon the attitude of Admiral Little in the performance of his duties as an inspector," said the statement, "is shown by the testimony of Lieutenant Moses, who admitted that Admiral Little was not easily approachable, and that he, Moses, was made to feel that his opinions and recommendations would preferably be made to Rear Admiral Little's assistants; this attitude is furthermore exemplified in Rear Admiral Little's own testimony, wherein he refers to the fact that he was not fully and honorably acquitted Rear Admiral Little of the charges. The department is unable to concur with the court or after careful review of the evidence to ascertain the reasons governing it in its acquittal. In view, however, of the impracticability and expense attending the reconvening of the court and the fact that Rear Admiral Little now no longer is on inspection duty and of the improbability of his method being followed by other officers on inspection duty, and in view of his admitted personal and official integrity, the department has disapproved the findings and acquittal without reconvening the court for consideration thereof.

Secretary Daniels said his chief reason for disapproving the acquittal was because he wished to impress upon older officers the necessity of giving full weight to the recommendations of their juniors.

Lieutenant Moses was on duty in preparation for taking command of the vessel when, on November 1, 1914, he was ordered to inspect the K-2. He found the vessel in a state of disrepair and recommended that it be repaired without charge should later prove defective. The contractors now are repairing the batteries without charge, although under no legal obligation to do so.

The K-2 was accepted in January, 1914. Rear Admiral Little's courtmartial was ordered by Secretary Daniels October 10 in reports of her officers detailing the imperfections of her batteries.

The testimony was brought out after R. L. Batts, attorney for the government, had read into the record an exchange of correspondence subsequent to the interview between Mellon and H. M. Whitney of Boston.

"I have always thought it possible that the Little father at Washington might want to get his finger in the pie," wrote Mr. Whitney in reference to the Boston and Maine deal.

"In which case if it should happen before the public had become reconciled to the change it might result in infinite harm to all your interests."

"The Washington situation," Mellon wrote in reply, "I have I think, completely cared for. One never knows for certain about those matters but the ground has been carefully ploughed and every chance of trouble considered, and I think eliminated."

From this point the government today went into the more or less familiar history of the New Haven's troubles in getting permanent control of the Boston and Maine, which culminated in 1909 in the passage by the Massachusetts legislature of a law enabling the New Haven legally to control the 109,000 shares of Boston and Maine stock it had acquired.

The government met a setback, however, when the court ruled that evidence as to possible corruption of the legislature was admissible. Judge Hunt held that no such means were alleged in the indictment as having been used by the New Haven to gain its alleged monopoly of New England transportation traffic.

The famous Billard deal whereby it is alleged the New Haven fictitiously transferred its Boston and Maine holdings to John L. Billard, of Meriden, Conn., was the subject of testimony but the occasion, too, of long argument by counsel which was unfinished when court adjourned.

JUICE OF GARLIC USED BY SURGEONS

Antiquated Remedy Adopted in Army. Earth Product Gets Attention.

On the battle field of Europe the juice of garlic is being used in wounds to prevent suppuration. English surgeons have resurrected this antiquated remedy and are enthusiastic over it, claiming that it not only prevents the formation of pus but so promotes the flow of lymph and that in 48 hours the wound is well under control.

An earth remedy that is creating deep interest throughout America is the product known as natural Vitalitas. While it has antiseptic and astringent values in the treatment of wounds, still its usefulness is much more pronounced when taken internally as a blood and nerve tonic and as a corrective for many chronic ills that ordinary medicines do not reach. The Vitalitas treatment is being widely adopted for disorders of stomach, rheumatism, general debility, kidney, liver and blood ills.

Coming from the deep interior of the earth, Vitalitas contains only earth chemicals and forces and the result is a remarkable cure being reported throughout many states from its use. As extracted it is a heavy, dark, golden liquid and a teaspoonful in a half glass of hot or cold water is the adult dose.

ECONOMY CAMPAIGN IS ON IN ENGLAND

WAR COSTING GREAT BRITAIN SUM OF $25,000,000 EVERY TWENTY-FOUR HOURS.

IMPORTS EXCEEDING EXPORTS

Higher Tariff, Keeping Up Manufacturing and Less Extravagance All Being Urged.

Correspondence of Associated Press.

London, Nov. 12.—The campaign for economy in living as a vital necessity for financing the war, which is costing Great Britain nearly twenty-five million dollars a day, continues to be pressed. Imports are exceeding exports by nearly five million dollars a day, and consequently depreciating foreign exchange so that England really pays above 5 per cent more than the nominal prices for commodities bought in America. Restrictions of imports is urged as one of the most obvious practical methods of economy.

That government exports must be decreased and the gap between exports and imports narrowed is agreed upon by all. Various and often conflicting remedies are proposed. A revival of the party of protection is a noticeable symptom. Some protection is the demand of several papers, notably the Morning Post, which asks a high tariff on imports and one so framed that the colonies will have preference, diverting business from the United States to them.

That the British empire should live on its own resources so far as foodstuffs are concerned, the Post contends and spend its money among its own people as Germany is doing.

Lord Liversort, who has had long experience as a successful business man, told the house of lords the import of non-essential things throughout the port of London alone reached $125,000,000 a year. He proposed total prohibition of the import of luxuries. But Lord Crewe replied that such a step would be impracticable as many of the commodities came from allied nations already suffering commercial depression, while increases of the goods taxed by tariff would involve an additional to the customs establishment more expensive than the value of the taxes collected.

Should Increase Army.

Several statesmen have proclaimed the necessity of keeping up Great Britain's general manufacturing as the best method of trying to balance the foreign trade account. The military expert of the Times opposes this theory strongly.

"The German principle is to rope in every man who can fight," he says, "and to subordinate the requirements of trade to those of victory, certain that if victory can be achieved everything else will come with it."

He considers that thirty new divisions should be added to the army by next August and inquires what it would profit to say that export trade was flourishing but that the armies were defeated.

The Daily News replies that if the military situation cannot be treated as if it was a kind of vacuum.

"What is the use of victory in the field if the army which wins cannot be kept in being for lack of money to maintain it?" the paper inquires. "Of what avail is our naval supremacy if we have no longer the funds or the credit to buy the food which the navy assures the safe passage?"

Factory Earnings Larger.

E. T. Good, a writer on economics, claims that the actual earnings in many factories are a hundred per cent more than usual and declares that a large proportion of the abnormal earnings are being spent in a way that increases the adverse trade balance.

The Economist discusses Mr. Asquith's statement of the financial position with a word of warning on the same line. It says:

"It is possible for the country to carry on the war on this scale and to assist its allies on this scale, and perhaps even to recruit on this scale, but only if it is very quickly induced or compelled no longer to live on this scale."

"It is not possible for it to go on warring and recruiting and spending five hundred millions sterling a day and at the same time to go on increasing its drink bill at the rate of 16 million pounds sterling a year and indulging its fancy in grandiose schemes of jewelry and more or less cheap motor cars."

Much Extravagance Yet.

The Statistic discusses the matter in the same vein. It says:

"Hitherto the British people have financed this great war in the same way as they would have financed a new government building, a new county hall or a new postoffice. They have assumed that expenditures for such a purpose would be met after they had supplied themselves with their necessities, comforts and luxuries. The greatest reserve which the country possesses is still untouched—the power to reduce its expenditures upon comforts and luxuries and by so doing set free the additional money needed by the nation for war purposes."

That there is widespread and enormous extravagance caused by the necessity of giving great contracts without time for investigation and through the lack of habits of living made possible by inflated wages to workmen and high separation allowances to soldiers' families, is widely admitted. The growth of the movement against extravagance is visible daily, but no crystallized plan has yet been proposed by the government, only hints of increased taxation having been made.

An Old, Family Cough Remedy, Home-Made

Easily Prepared—Costs Very Little, but is Prompt, Sure and Effective

By making this pint of old-time cough syrup at home you not only save about $2, as compared with the ready-made stuff, but you will also have a much more prompt and positive remedy in every way. It overcomes the usual coughs, throat and chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly—and is excellent for bronchitis, bronchial asthma, hoarseness and spasmodic cough.

Get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

You can feel that take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. It quickly loosens the dry, hoarse or painful cough and heals the inflamed membranes. It also has a remarkable effect in overcoming the persistent loose cough by stopping the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes.

The effect of Pinex on the membranes is known by almost every one. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract combined with guaiaecol and other natural healing pine elements.

There are many worthless imitations of this famous mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

MISS ROSE EDMOND AT HOME FOR THREE VISITORS

Honoring three who were visiting for Cotton Palace gayety, Miss Rose Edmond was at home to more than the hundred callers during Saturday afternoon. These had been bidden to meet formally, the Mesdames Ella Motz Lowden from Abilene, and Fred Abney of Brownwood, with Miss Elizabeth Burroughs from Austin. In extending this compliment, Miss Edmond welcomed a number of other visitors, those within the homes of her friends. Thus it was a private courtesy much appreciated in contrast to the hurly burly of the exposition.

Miss Edmond observed the prettily of her family seconding her cordial welcome. One of the interesting features, rather out of the ordinary, was the opportunity to inspect more carefully the exquisite miniatures of Mrs. Lowden, some of the arts and crafts pieces of Miss Burroughs and some specially good ecchings from Katherine Merrill of New York City.

One of the unexpected greetings was that for Mrs. Oscar Marchman, who had just arrived from Dallas. Patronage of the huge gold chrysanthemum was given the tea table, with the same flower in less than blossom about the room. The calling hours were between 4 and 6 o'clock.

One of the unexpected greetings was that for Mrs. Oscar Marchman, who had just arrived from Dallas. Patronage of the huge gold chrysanthemum was given the tea table, with the same flower in less than blossom about the room. The calling hours were between 4 and 6 o'clock.

MISS ROSE EDMOND AT HOME FOR THREE VISITORS

Honoring three who were visiting for Cotton Palace gayety, Miss Rose Edmond was at home to more than the hundred callers during Saturday afternoon. These had been bidden to meet formally, the Mesdames Ella Motz Lowden from Abilene, and Fred Abney of Brownwood, with Miss Elizabeth Burroughs from Austin. In extending this compliment, Miss Edmond welcomed a number of other visitors, those within the homes of her friends. Thus it was a private courtesy much appreciated in contrast to the hurly burly of the exposition.

Notice to Subscribers.
Delivery routes in the city of Waco are in the hands of independent carriers, who buy their papers at wholesale prices. Subscriptions accounts are due them, not the Waco Morning News. They are under heavy bond, not only to give the best delivery service, but to pay for their papers each month. Their remuneration is the difference between the wholesale price and the retail price which they receive from subscribers. This margin of profit is such that they cannot afford to extend credit, except month by month. They are not required, and they do not wish, to carry accounts against anyone who does not pay in accordance with the above subscription terms. These carriers are all earnest, hard working men and they will appreciate any courtesy shown them.

The Morning News should be delivered throughout the city of Waco by 6:30 a. m., and subscribers failing to receive the paper at that time will confer a favor by phoning the Circulation Department, both phones 1132, and a copy will be sent by special messenger.

Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm or corporation which does not appear in the columns of the Morning News will be gladly corrected upon its being brought to the attention of the management.

ADVERTISING AS A TOWN ASSET.

Commenting upon the success of a special day set apart by the business men of Comanche the Comanche Pioneer-Chief says:

"Comanche had the biggest day's business in the past ten years last week and the reason was—Comanche advertised. Several of the large firms put on sales and advertised them thoroughly. People came to Comanche who had not traded here in a year. A concerted advertising campaign brought business to the town. Do the merchants want business here? If so they must advertise.

"Other towns about us are advertising and drawing our trade territory down. Will the merchants permit it? The man who doesn't boost his business will see it die. If you tell all the passers by that we are doing nothing, can we expect people to come to us? If we do not boost Comanche's business, only those people will trade here who can't go elsewhere."

Business men of Comanche have demonstrated here what those of wide-awake towns have known for years—that intelligent advertising, backed up by giving adequate values received, will not only bring people to a town but will induce them to buy the things advertised when they get there. It is well that individual firms and individuals should present the claims of their establishments and goods the year round, day in and day out, but it is advisable that occasionally they come together on a community proposition such as the Comanche trades day, the Waco style show, the Cotton Palace season and the like and co-operate in making special inducements to the people from far and near to come in and see their offerings. For as long as people have wants they are going to try and satisfy them and that merchant who can satisfy those wants most completely and on the most attractive terms is going to enjoy their trade provided he tells them about it through the columns of the newspapers.

NAME THE MAN.

In the same issue of the Austin American a day or so ago we found the following paragraphs:

"Is there any reason why the people of Texas should submit to the activities of a known agent of a foreign junta in its most important educational institution?"

"The circumstance that a man trained a skunk to hunt game, created surprise and interest everywhere except in Texas where one of the breed holds the position of instructor in English in one of its universities."

We are foolish enough to bite. Name the man and give the tax payers the full benefit of the information you possess.

ENCOURAGING THE TENANTS.

It is easy to sit up in a city office and tell the tenants how to become independent and how they should conduct their farming operations generally. And from our viewpoint in the city it looks very simple for the tenant to comprehend the advantages of crop diversification and the like; but there are obstacles confronting some of the tenants—and most of them, we expect—about which the average city man knows but little. It requires more than the average initiative, force of will, and other such characteristics for tenants to overcome the obstacles that confront them and only the exceptional tenant is going to become a successful land owner, just as it is only the exceptional man in the city who attains to large success in a business or professional career.

Over at Frost, Navarro county, Mayor J. L. Halbert, an extensive land owner, has discovered a means of arousing more interest among his tenants and has been instrumental in introducing them to diversify on a large scale. Realizing that cotton did not offer much inducement this year, Mayor Halbert bought a lot of seed wheat and oats and provided his tenants with them, telling the tenants to pay whenever they could. He likewise encouraged the tenants to raise chickens, both for the market and their own consumption, grow gardens and raise corn.

With his mother Mayor Halbert owns considerable land in the neighborhood of the Jones Ranch in Navarro county. His mother put up $50 in cash prizes for the tenants growing the best, second best and third best corn this year. Mr. Halbert enlisted the services of a canning club expert who came into the community and organized the girls into canning clubs and instructed them in the art of preserving and canning the fruit and vegetables grown on the farm. For the best and second best canned products Mrs. Halbert offered a total of $15 in gold. So liberal were the responses to these offers that it was decided to have an exhibit of the canned products at the Jones Ranch school house and a general community gathering was held there on the occasion of the awarding of the prizes a few nights ago.

As a result of this stimulus furnished by Mayor Halbert and his mother there has come a new life into the Jones Ranch community. The tenants on the Halbert lands will be better farmers hereafter and the landlords will draw larger returns upon their investment in the land.

There are some tenants who are so thrifless and indifferent that no amount of appreciation and co-operation from the landlords would make them desirable to have on the farm, but on the other hand there are some landlords who are so selfish and indifferent towards the needs of their tenants that they will pursue a policy that is contrary to their own interests rather than make a concession to their renters. It would be fatal to the tenant to have everything supplied to him and thus relieve him of the necessity of diligent effort on his own part, but fore-sighted co-operation of the kind that Mayor Halbert and his mother have employed during the current year will make farming more profitable for landlord and tenants alike, will make the community in which the land is located a more desirable place in which to live and will contribute something toward that much desired end of keeping the more intelligent boys and girls upon the farm instead of sending them to the city, which has been the tendency for the past several years.

WHERE JAPAN PRECEDED US.

The experiments in prison reform conducted by Thomas Mott Osborne, warden of Sing Sing prison, New York, have attracted attention in Japan, not only because the Japanese are always keenly interested in the social movement of the west, but for the special reason that a system for self-government similar to that which is being tried at Sing Sing was followed in the prisons of Tokio as far back as the year 1850, according to the Florida Metropolis.

It is intimated that if Warden Osborne's Sing Sing experiments succeed, there is a possibility that the self-government scheme may be inaugurated, or rather revived, in Japanese prisons.

Keijiro Yamashita, who is chief engineer in the present department of justice, has found that in 1850 the inmates of Tokio prisons chose their own officials for the maintenance of order, and a great deal of authority was vested in those officials, even the power to impose the sentence of death. So far as the records show the Tokio system worked out satisfactorily, but for some reason it dropped out of vogue.

Japan has always watched the course of the prison reform in the United States, and when a movement was started to improve the Japanese prisons in 1881, commissions were sent to the United States, as well as Europe, to make a study of prison conditions. Owing to the difference in life and customs, western methods could not be wholly introduced into the Japanese prisons, but in 1903 a great step forward was made by placing all the prisoners of the empire directly under the department of justice and by inaugurating the separate-cell system. The new men's prison at Tokio, which was built by prisoners last year, is regarded as a model institution. There are two classes of cells, one for old offenders, and one, less prison-like, for first offenders.

The "ordinary" department has plastered walls and plank floors and sleeping rooms to accommodate eight persons, each room having six electric bulbs. Mr. Yamashita says: "The prisoners are well provided for in the way of library and bathing facilities, and have netting on the windows to keep out mosquitoes in summer. There is an amphitheatre seating 300 where the prisoners may be gathered for moral or religious instruction. There is a prison hospital with attendant physicians, as well as factories of all kinds and facilities for teaching prisoners to become useful members of society after being set free."

Dallas has raised more than the $100,000 promised for the national democratic convention, in case that body should come to Texas next year, and will send a special train of boosters to Washington December 7 for the meeting of the executive committee, when the date and place of the next convention will be determined.

Lord Macaulay declared, "That is the best government which desires to make the people happy, and knows how to make them happy." But one of the troubles is that some people do not know when they are happy, and the time never comes when all of them are happy at the same time, nor do all of them ever get happy from the same cause.

The Houston Chronicle says the time has arrived for Houston to drop her carnival of noise and provide a sure-enough exposition on the scale of the state fair at Dallas or the Cotton Palace at Waco. Our suggestion to the South Texas metropolis would be to discard the No-Tsu-Oh carnival and place its emphasis upon the Woman's fair, which made such a creditable beginning this year.

Luke Lea, editor of the Nashville, Tennessee, who enjoyed the distinction of being the youngest member of the United States senate, has been defeated for re-election and a secondary primary will be held with former Governor Malcolm R. Laws can not be made to retroact in this country but jail sentences have something of that character in Italy. By reason of the fact that Porter Charlton, the young American who slew his wife while they were on their honeymoon at Lake Como, had spent about five years in jail pending his trial, he is now free, following his recent conviction of uxoricide and the imposition of a sentence of six years. A year was taken off the sentence by a special local decree.

18 POUNDS OF BLOOD
Is the average quantity in a healthy adult, but it is the quality of the blood that determines our strength to resist sickness. With weak blood we find cold hands and chilly feet; in children an aversion to study, and in adults rheumatic tendencies.

In changing seasons get abundant fresh air and take a spoonful of Scott's Emulsion after meals, because Scott's Emulsion is a rich blood-food that will increase both quantity and quality of the blood while it warms the body and helps carry off the impurities.

When multitudes of people are today taking Scott's Emulsion to avert winter sickness, and are giving it to their children, it is careless to neglect its benefits. Look out for substitutes. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

Well Known Remedy
Relieves Chronic Case

IMPORTANT TO DISPOSE OF WASTE FROM THE STOMACH WITH REGULARITY.

People frequently attribute to failure of the digestive organs conditions that are primarily due to inactive bowels, and apply remedies that from their very nature are more apt to aggravate than to relieve the disorder.

When the bowels act regularly the stomach is in better shape to perform its allotted tasks and can usually be depended upon. To keep the bowels in condition there is no more effective remedy than the combination of simple laxative herbs known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is sold in drug stores for 50c a bottle.

Dr. Caldwell has prescribed this remedy in his practice for over a quarter of a century and it is today the standard household remedy in thousands of homes. Thomas DeLoach, with the department of the interior, office of Indian affairs, at Washington, wrote Dr. Caldwell recently that "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the best laxative I have any knowledge of and the cleaning up guaranteed by its use relieves every organ."

MR. THOS. DeLOACH.

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin should be on hand in every home for use when needed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 454 Washington Street, Monticello, Ill.

HOME

ENSHRINED IN EVERY HUMAN HEART is the constant thought of HOME—a thought inborn in every one of us. Our present civilization has been built by the influence a HOME has toward developing the finer traits of humanity. Watch the crowds at eventide hurrying toward street cars, jitneys, or winding their way through crowds, in autos, buggies and on motorcycles. They are going HOME. After the music and laughter of the theater, a dance, a ball, the people go HOME. In every Nation under the sun—after a tired business day sinks into the arms of restful night—the world goes HOME. It is the stage of our sorrows and our joys; the haven of rest after the grind of a day. This brings us to the all-important question—WHAT KIND OF A HOME? You can't deny that a cozy, comfortable HOME, one that contains the deep, easy chairs, the beautiful floor coverings and FURNITURE you admire, will please you better than the HOME that is scantily furnished. A HOME doesn't mean simply four walls and a window. You will say "Well and true, but I can't afford it." Here's where my DIVIDED PAYMENT PLANS comes in. You buy whatever you want for your HOME and pay weekly or monthly as your salary permits—and, better still, my stock is the largest and most complete in Waco and my PRICES ALWAYS THE LOWEST.

Traveling Man Kills Self at Muskogee; Women With Him

By the Associated Press.

Muskogee, Okla., Nov. 22.—F. R. Wingate, a traveling salesman for a millinery company at Kingman, Kan., killed himself in a hotel room here today, firing five shots from a small revolver. Two women said to be acquaintances of Wingate, and who were guests at the hotel, were detained by the police and held for investigation.

The women gave the names of Eva and Tommie Murphy and said their home was in Dallas, Texas. A physician who examined Wingate's body declared the shots were self-inflicted.

The fire started in a front room of the Fant home, while occupants of the house were outside watching the army aviators flying over the city. Mr. Fant carried $1700 insurance on his house and $300 on his furniture, his entire loss being in the neighborhood of $2000.

METHODIST CHURCHES UNITE IN ST. LOUIS

NORTHERN AND SOUTHERN SECTIONS MERGE FOR FORWARD WORK OF DENOMINATION.

Sixty Congregations Represented at Meeting Where Decision Is Reached.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Nov. 22.—The St. Louis Ministerial association of the Methodist Episcopal church and of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, merged here today and henceforth the forward work of the two churches in St. Louis will be conducted as though by one organization. Sixty congregations were represented at the meeting.

The merger was deemed of prime importance in Methodist circles, and Rev. James W. Lee, presiding elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, said it was hoped that it would preclude similar mergers in other border cities, such as Kansas City, Baltimore, Washington and Louisville. St. Louis is the largest city where both branches of Methodism exist.

Rev. Mr. Lee said that henceforth there would be no conflict or rivalry between the two branches of Methodism in establishing new churches in St. Louis and that for all practical purposes the two churches henceforth are united in St. Louis.

A plan for the merger of the two branches of Methodism will come before the Methodist Episcopal general conference, which will meet next May. Definite action looking to the union of the two churches throughout the world is then expected.

PROFIT IN DIME LODGINGS.

Guests Can Get Most All Comforts Except a Rocker.

Fortunes are made in the dime lodging house business, so the testimony runs before the public welfare committee of the board of aldermen, which furnishes further verification of our contention the other day that anything that can be offered for 10 cents is sure of overwhelming success, be it a theatre performance or a noonday lunch, a pound of candy or a pair of half hose.

It is the age of the dime. A highwayman the other evening held up his victims for 10 cents each and got away, because no one would pursue him for that amount, the professional panhandler has long since that small sum his maximum and thrives unceasingly.

For 10 cents a lodging house can offer its lodgers a clean pillow slung on which to lay their heads, plenty of soap and water and a red-hot stove all night if the state of the temperature demands it. Of course, as one lodging-house keeper expresses it semi-apologetically, one can't give a lodger a rocking chair for that, but we doubt not for 10 cents more he could have it if he so desired.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

IN SIXTY-NINE FIERCE BATTLES

Served Throughout Civil War Under Gen. Sherman; Relates True Story.

The manufacturers of Plant Juice, the new herbal system tonic being introduced here, are safeguarding their remedy by novel means in that they are only using voluntary testimonials from people of integrity and standing, so that the public cannot be deceived.

For instance, the case of Mr. E. B. Up de Grove, who resides at No. 2222 Beersford avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, Civil War veteran, having fought in 69 battles under General Sherman, and was wounded four different times, made the following statement recently:

"For quite a number of years I have suffered with stomach and kidney trouble. My food would ferment in my stomach, causing gases to form and I was always more or less bloated. I was also chronically constipated, nervous and restless and could not sleep at night. I had doctored and taken a great many remedies for my troubles, but nothing seemed to help me. I had heard some of my friends talking about Plant Juice and I thought I would try a bottle. I can now truthfully state for publication that since taking Plant Juice I have felt like a different person. I can eat anything I desire and it never distresses me. It has a decided effect on my kidneys, as I no longer have any pains now in my back. In fact, my general health has greatly improved. I am grateful for my recovery to health, and give all due praise to Plant Juice."

GOVERNOR FERGUSON AND CARRANZA MEET AT LOREDO TODAY

they re-open their properties, and said he could assume personal responsibility for their welfare.

Oregon returned to Naco tonight, after a visit to Agua Prieta.

The main Carranza army in Sonora tonight was reported advancing toward Nogales along the Southern Pacific railroad.

By the Associated Press.

San Antonio, Nov. 22.—First Chief Carranza, who is at Laredo today, authorized a statement telling of improvements under way and projected for the expenditure of about 100,000,000 pesos by the new government.

Chief in importance is the drainage of Lake Texcoco, a vast reclamation project which will insure a modern, hygienic, sanitary and storm system. "This work is now being pushed with all the energy of the new government," he said, "and it is known here that there will be no let-up of work until the job is finished. It is costing 15,000,000 pesos, so you can imagine its importance, while a small army of men is being employed on the project."

"The government is directing the construction of a great orphan asylum, built out of a permanent material, which will hereafter be the home of children whose fathers gave their lives for the constitutional cause. These children will become the wards of the government and will be given the advantage of educational opportunities and taught useful trades. Then, too, there are several charity hospitals under way, one for the exclusive use of women.

"The government is superintending public works of all characters. This is for a two-fold purpose, the first for the rapid restoration of the country and the carrying out of belated improvement projects, and second, to provide work for thousands of persons who were out of employment before the occupancy of the capital by the constitutional forces. Because of these improvements business activity in the City of Mexico has increased rapidly and the capital has taken a new lease of life. There is plenty of work for everybody and an unlimited food supply. This will be a good winter in the capital and there will be no starvation conditions.

"The famous Belem prison, in which the late General Bernardo Reyes and other Mexican notables have been held incommunicado, has been destroyed. More humane methods," said Carranza, "will hereafter characterize the treatment of prisoners in Mexico. The day has passed when such methods as were employed at Belem will be tolerated."

IF BELGIUM HAD PREPARED.

Albert's Present Efficient Army Indicates What Might Have Been.

Let us profit alike by Belgium's heroic example in the present, and by the terrible fate brought on her by her lack of forethought and preparedness in the past.

At present, in spite of shattering disasters of the last year and a quarter, and although only a tiny fraction of her territory is left unconquered, Belgium's army is stronger and more efficient than ever before. It numbers about 120,000 fighting men, with more than 400 guns, and 1,000 machine guns, and in addition first-class services of aviation, food supply, sanitation, manufacture of ammunition and the like. There are 14 centers for the drilling of recruits, and excellent schools for the officers. The morale of the army is extraordinary.

I know of nothing finer in the history than the way in which this army has been raised and maintained by the Belgian nation in the midst of a cataclysmic well-nigh unparalleled in the history of nations. But this cataclysm, this frightful and crushing disaster to Belgium occurred precisely because no such effort was put forth before the event. The splendid heroism of the present can only repair a small part of the horrible damage due to the unpreparedness of the past.

Belgium has suffered the last extremities of woe; and she would have gone almost unscathed if before the war came she had prepared an army as strong relatively to her then strength as the present army is strong relative to her present weakness.—Theodore Roosevelt, in Metropolitan Magazine.

ALLEGED REVOLTERS EXECUTED BY TURKS

ELEVEN MEMBERS OF EGYPTIAN SECRET SOCIETY PUT TO DEATH AT BEIRUT.

Dismemberment of Ottoman Empire Is Declared Object of the Conspirators.

By the Associated Press.

Washington, Nov. 22.—Execution at Beirut of eleven members of an Egyptian secret society, which it is claimed had for its object the dismemberment of Turkey and the creation of an independent Arabian state under the protectorate of Great Britain, was announced here today by the Turkish embassy. The members of the society, the embassy alleges, planned to assassinate high officials and many other prominent people.

The text of the announcement follows:

"The Ottoman government, having been informed of the existence in Egypt, with branches in Syria and Iraq, of a secret society whose aim is the creation of an independent Arabian state under Great Britain's protectorate, ordered that a most thorough inquiry be made. The purpose of this was to discover who were the promoters of this society, the object under which the institution of a hostile power was the dismemberment of Turkey, notwithstanding the strong ties which bind all Arabs to the mother country.

"This inquiry, conducted with the utmost care and earnest desire of finding out the truth, brought out the most undeniable proof of the existence of this society.

"Several arrests took place and the matter was brought before the court martial in Beirut. The case was tried with all due precaution. The culpability of the accused having been established, some of the traitors, most of them by default, were sentenced to death in virtue of Article 54 of the Ottoman criminal code.

"Out of thirteen culprits sentenced and who were actually arrested, eleven were executed in Beirut and two were pardoned by the sultan on account of their age."

BAREFOOT FOR 35 YEARS.

Oklahoman Believes It Keeps Him in Good Health.

For 35 years F. M. Haigler has gone unshod the year round, and now, at 75, he is devoid of aches or pains or physical blemishes of any sort. He is a normal man, of extraordinary physique, standing 6 feet tall and weighing 325 pounds. He is as plucky as a boy of 17.

"I don't remember of ever being ill," he says, "and I have always eaten what has been set before me with the relish of a hungry man. I have lived outdoors as much as possible and have always been active, both mentally and physically. Maybe that has helped to keep me young."

There is nothing eccentric about Haigler. He is practical and unostentatious, of exceptionally sound business judgment, and is generally well known and liked throughout the state. He is the father of five sons, all strong and husky men, owners of large herds of cattle, horses and hogs and thousands of acres of land.

When the elder Haigler was democratic county chairman he called the convention to order with the thermometer many degrees below freezing, and presided in his bare feet while the other members were wishing for a stove.

Haigler contends that it is conducive to health and happiness to go barefooted, and that his barefoot habit is no mere whim or caprice.—Carlton (Okla.) correspondence.

BOMBAY MILLS LOSING.

Cotton Factories May Close Twelve Days in the Month.

It has been pointed out on more than one occasion that India has been less affected by the war than almost any other belligerent country. Some of her leading industries, including jute, have indeed benefited enormously as the result of the special demand set in motion by the war, but, of course, some of her industries have been hard hit, and one of the chief of these is the cotton industry of Bombay.

The Bombay cotton mills have been subjected to a continuous strain ever since the outbreak of the war, and this has now been rendered more acute by reason of the steady decline in the price of the raw material. The stock in the market of baled goods shows an increase of 2617 bales. Case goods show an increase of 2617 bales. Case goods show a decrease of 451 cases. The total stock on August 21 stood at 113,913 packages. So serious is the position that the Idea has even been brought forward that some of the mills may go into voluntary liquidation.—Calcutta Correspondence of Christian Science Monitor.

He has been found out. Some coffee concerns have tried to rid him of caffeine, a powerful habit-forming drug, but without full success, and in so doing have partially destroyed his only redeeming feature, pleasant taste.

Coffee is becoming more and more unpopular with thinking people everywhere. They are finding out that its drug, caffeine, is a frequent cause of headache, nervousness, biliousness and various other ills.

The point is—can you afford to risk health and happiness for a few cups of coffee? The wise thing is to quit coffee and use

Expert Will Give Free Lectures to Farmers of County

Free lectures to the farmers of McLennan county on testing and selecting seed corn will be given in Waco beginning at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon by Frank Clark of the Frank Clark Seed company of Fort Worth, whose visit to Waco was arranged through the efforts of the Central Texas Exchange National Bank.

Mr. Clark will arrive tonight in a special car, which will be parked near the Katy station. A cordial invitation to attend the lectures has been extended by officials of the bank.

How to test corn for seed and five points in selecting seed to produce the greatest yield and stand the most adverse conditions will be explained by Mr. Clark. The lectures will be absolutely free to the public.

Last year the Central Texas Exchange National Bank bought 1000 packages of selected corn seed and distributed them among McLennan county farmers for planting. Some of the corn produced from this seed and displayed recently in the lobby of the bank has attracted much attention, both because of its fine size and evident large yield to the acre.

Negro Charged With Assault to Murder Fails to Make Bond

Justice J. J. Padgett, following the preliminary hearing of Claude Hawkins, negro, charged with attempt to murder Ashby Upsher, another negro, held the defendant under $750 bond to await the action of the grand jury. In default of bond, Hawkins was remanded to the custody of the sheriff.

It is alleged by the state that Hawkins made an unprovoked assault with intent to kill Upsher by shooting him twice with a shotgun. The shooting occurred Friday, November 19, near the mouth of the Bosque. Upsher was wounded in the left leg and hip. His injuries are not serious.

Dr. Tull Delivers Strong Sermon on Sin in Revival Services

"All have sinned and come short of the glory of God" was the text from which Dr. S. E. Tull, pastor of the First Baptist church at Temple, preached a powerful sermon in the revival at the Columbus Street Baptist church last night.

The preacher pointed out to the Christians in the congregation the helpless condition of a man in sin, and urged each to arouse himself to the responsibility of his unsaved loved ones during the two weeks of the revival.

A large crowd heard the preacher last night, in the comfortably heated auditorium of the Columbus Street Baptist church. Services today and evening, beginning at 7:30 p. m. and 7:30 p. m.

FULKERSON HEADS CITY WATER WORKS SYSTEM

DUTIES OF SUPERINTENDENT
ADDED TO SECRETARY WITH SALARY OF FORMER.

Resolutions Deplore Death of S. J. Quay—Werenskiold to Investigate
Sitting Up of River Bed.

Secretary E. L. Fulkerson becomes head of the Waco City Waterworks, while retaining his present title, and the office of superintendent is reduced to mean only the foreman in charge of the construction force employed by the waterworks, as the result of the sweeping action taken by the board of water commissioners in their regular monthly meeting last night. H. W. Steinman, an employee of the system, was made superintendent, with a salary of $1800 a year, the salary formerly paid to the secretary. Mr. Fulkerson's salary was increased to $2200 a year, which amount formerly attached to the office of superintendent. The effect of the action of the board was to combine the duties of superintendent and secretary with the salary of the former and the title of the latter.

Previous conferences having been held by the members of the commission and a decision reached, the action of last night was a mere formality and required little time. Eleven applications for the superintendent's place to succeed S. J. Quay, who was killed in an automobile accident October 30, had been filed with the secretary, but these were not considered by the board in arriving at its decision.

The major construction work of the water system has been completed and an engineer at the head of the system is no longer necessary," said Chairman William Sleeper, speaking of the action of the board last night. The system of the head of the system now is to maintain the efficiency of the system and to put into effect economic practices that will result in a saving to the taxpayers of the city in water rents. It is a task of right management, and Mr. Fulkerson, we think, is the man for the place."

W. H. Deaton, meter reader, and J. D. O'Neal, meter clerk, received raises in salary of $10 a month each.

The shift in the employees of the system made last night resulted in a saving in salaries alone of $450, according to statements made by members of the board last night. This saving was made possible by the fact that the major construction work requiring the services of several highly paid men had been finished.

Resolutions on Death of S. J. Quay.

Resolutions expressing the sorrow of the board at the tragic death of S. J. Quay, who was for seven years superintendent of the system, were adopted by the board. The resolutions were prepared by R. H. Rogers, chairman of the resolutions committee. An additional testimony to the completion of Mr. Quay's work during his seven years with the board, was brought out last night in the discussion of the saving made possible by the fact that all the major construction needed for the system had been completed.

Sand in the river at the filtering plant has silted up until the entire lower intake opening has been filled and the bed of the river is now on the level with the upper intake opening, which was designed to take only water during rises, according to the report made to the board last night by Secretary Fulkerson. N. Werenskiold of Dallas, engineer who built the filtering plant, will be called into consultation to determine the solution of the problem.

Mr. Fulkerson last night declared that the bed of the river at the lower intake had filled in seven feet since the plant was built eighteen months ago.

Following were the resolutions on the death of Mr. Quay adopted by the board last night:

"In the death of Sam J. Quay, which occurred on October 30, 1915, the city of Waco lost one of its most useful citizens. In his position as superintendent of the city waterworks, which he held for seven years, he proved himself a faithful, able and conscientious public servant. Because of this sorrow, this public calamity, we, the water commissioners of the city, so long associated with Mr. Quay in this service, do here record our appreciation of the man and officer.

"Sam J. Quay, a native of Ireland, had spent most of his fifty-five years of life in our midst, and the modest young stranger of some thirty years ago had by a life of guileless duty-doing won the respect, the confidence and the love of the people with whom his lot was cast, and because of sheer worth was called by that people from the walks of private life to the discharge of public functions. "During these last years of his life among us he met and wed the partner of his life; here his children were born, and here the name of Quay remains, a synonym of domestic public utility. As husband and father, neighbor and friend, citizen and public official, he measured up to the standard of a man and his untimely and tragic death leaves void a place that is hard indeed to fill. "We mourn him, but not without hope, for he lived and died a Christian. And we can thank the God who made him what he was, and who gave him the chief task of his life. For the very poor plant he first took charge of, has, under his able superintendence, his sleepless energy and untiring devotion, become what it is today—one of the civic pride of Waco.

"He is gone. We have laid his body to sleep in our city. God rest his soul."

PERSONAL MENTION.

He expressed his surprise at the marked development that has come to Waco within the past few years.

Edward Wheeler of Tacoma, Wash., and John Sturgis of Lexington, Mo., formerly of Waco, are in the city, having returned from a hunting trip of several weeks on the Gulf coast. Mr. Wheeler, who is the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Sturgis of the Kyle, and Mr. Sturgis, who is a former Wacoan and a brother of E. A. and Jim Sturgis, were in Waco for several days, visiting friends and relatives previously to their departure for their hunting trip on the coast.

In order to make the occasion an impressive one, the American Defense Society has requested the co-operation of the boards of trade of the various cities, asking that they designate this day as a flag day over the city of Waco, on which day all citizens who are in favor of a greater national defense are urgently requested to show such belief by hanging out flags at every house.

At the same time the American Defense Society is distributing a card appeal to be signed by voters and sent to their respective congressmen and senators, urging action at the next session of congress in favor of adequate national defense. Cards may be had upon request at the National

MANY TEACHERS HAVE A PART

Primary Teachers From All Over City Contributed to Success of Model Class at Cotton Palace.

To the Waco Morning News:

In your notice last Sunday of the demonstration of school work that was given at Maennerchor hall the day before, you failed to name in any way the teachers who most deserved mention. I am sure you will be glad to make the amende honorable.

Miss Haliburton, the primary supervisor, planned the work, but she asserts that the teachers of the low first grades did all the work without the assistance of any one, and that these teachers—Capt. J. A. Weathered, Miss Hayes, Miss Jennie Moore and Miss Everts of the South Eighth street school, Miss Glass and Miss Wood of the Sanger avenue school, Miss Cassidy, supervisor of music, led the children in their first songs. Miss Everts of the South Eighth street school, was at the piano and furnished the beautiful, soft and correct notes which did so much to guide the little voices in their sweet singing.

Mr. Flankin, Mr. Allen and Miss Everts were the principals selected by Miss Haliburton to assist in ushering, seating the children, etc. Beyond this we principals can claim little or no credit for the successful performance of what most of us feared would be an impossible task.

Very respectfully,

Are your boys and girls getting a world of good these days out of that box of Miss Spokane Wagners? Not only the joy of eating them, but the genuine good that the apples will do to their health.

In Thanksgiving

Miss Spokane joins in the spirit of this glad time. She thanks the good people of Texas for the many kind words that they have said about the apples that she has sent them. These apples are the choicest product of the mountain valleys of her land. She is indeed glad that you have liked them well.

In this spirit of thankfulness she thinks of the homes that have revived the good custom of having a box of apples in the pantry all the time—the thousands of boys and girls that happily have munched these apples and have grown healthier and better.

And on Thanksgiving day itself—Miss Spokane hopes that when you gather with your family and your friends, one of the honored guests of the day will be a basket of gloriously red Miss Spokane Wagners—as a climax to the day that you will enjoy this white meat fruit, crisp and crackly, with juice that is spicy and has a flavor all its own—a flavor that carries memories of the coolness of the mountain land from which the apples come.

Remember in your plans for Thanksgiving that the growers of the Spokane country have shipped their choicest product direct to Texas that you might buy apples by the box for your home at bargain prices:

"REDSKIN" MISS SPOKANE WAGNERS, $2.35.
"SUNSET" MISS SPOKANE WAGNERS, $2.20.

For a box of 47 to 50 pounds of perfect winter apples delivered to your home. The "Redskin" and "Sunset" labels guarantee quality. Do not let anyone sell you inferior fruit that is said to be just as good.

Decide now to treat your family to the first box. The apples will be fine to eat until after Christmas—only you will eat them first.

United States at Mercy Aerial Enemy, Declares Army Aviators Officers

That a flight across the Atlantic ocean not only is not among the list of impossibilities, but is due within a short time, is the opinion of Capt. B. D. Foulis, in command of Aero Squadron No. 1, United States Army, who arrived here yesterday with his fleet of six biplanes. Captain Foulis and his associate military birdmen are enroute to Fort Sam Houston from Port Sill, Okla., a distance of 560 miles. "I not only think it is possible with the most powerfully developed machines to make the trip, but I think it will be accomplished, at least undertaken, as quick as the European war ends," said Captain Foulis last night in conversation with C. L. McCollum, between whom there has been a personal friendship for years. "The Germans, in my opinion, will make the effort and will succeed. They already have studied the peculiar air currents extending from Germany across the ocean to the western hemisphere. Some of their aviators will get into these currents and with the assistance of the wind will make the flight across without mishap and subjected only to the customary dangers."

A wonderful speed may be attained by an airship in which a powerful motor is installed. And this speed becomes even more astonishing when the air currents are assisting. The highest rate of which there is any record was a Frenchman's trip from Paris to London, when he rode a gale at the rate of 250 miles an hour. In San Diego, one of the training ships stood still above the city for more than an hour. The air speedometer registered 65 miles an hour, but he was fighting a wind of a maximum speed of 73 miles an hour. Had he turned and traveled with the wind, he would have attained a speed of 138 miles an hour. He was in a comparatively weak machine. It is easy to see that an airship going at the rate of 150 miles would annihilate the distance between Berlin and Washington within a very short time."

It was explained by Captain Foulis that an air speedometer merely registers the rate the machine is going against the wind and not the ground speed. The drivers of biplanes in his fleet can merely guess at the ground speed by knowing the distance between two towns and timing themselves with an ordinary watch. Contrary, too, to the general idea, directions are not maintained exclusively by compass. The greater part of all trips are made by landmarks, usually railroads, but preferably rivers. Railroad tracks may be seen for several miles, while a river, especially when the sun is shining, may be seen for many miles.

At the present time, the United States is not any considerable factor so far as navy aviation is concerned. That is, in case of war, it would be an easy prey to the opposing nation. The fleet now parked in Waco is the only squadron, and they are used entirely for scout duty, and can carry but one man. Two machines belonging to this fleet are at Brownsville, having been sent there during the recent bandit trouble. That makes the total aviation strength of the United States only eight scout ships.

At the training school in San Diego there are ten ships. These, however, would be unfit for service in actual war. They are old machines and are being reconstructed merely for training purposes. Captain Foulis and other officers of his squadron are hopeful that congress will make adequate appropriation at the next session to place the aviation department upon an equal footing with the great nations. The United States has constructed, all told, but 53 airships since aviation became a wing of the army.

A committee was appointed by the Rotarians at the luncheon given the visiting officers at the New State House yesterday to investigate the advisability of drafting resolutions urging adequate appropriation to increase the aerial division of the army.

Waco Man Exonerated from Theft Charge by Other's Confession

James Hooper, arrested at Bryan several weeks ago in connection with the theft of an automobile owned by Dr. James Greenwood of the Greenwood sanitarium at Houston, about October 29, has been released and given complete exoneration. Charles Wilson, arrested and placed in jail at Houston, connected with the same offense, it is stated, made a confession, assuming entire responsibility for the theft. Attorney Pat Neff represented

Hair Curling Troubles Are Over—Read This!

Girls, have you heard about the newest way to curl the hair? If you have not, by all means, cut out these simple directions and try this wonderful method to-night before you go to bed. Just procure a new tooth brush and a few ounces of plain liquid silberine from your drug-gist, apply enough of the liquid with the brush to moisten the hair from root to tip. Tomorrow morning you will be quite astonished when you find that your hair has dried in such lovely waves and curls they appear altogether natural. Instead of having been artificially acquired, your hair will of course have more "body" and fluffiness than where the drying, singeing waving iron is used. It will appear glossier and livelier, for silberine has proved equally desirable as a dressing for the hair. You'll find it pleasant to use, and it will leave no sticky, greasy or streaky trace.

Hooper, Hooper upon his release from the Bryan jail went to Austin. His parents live in Waco.

THE BREEDING PLACE OF DEFECTIVE VISION.

Is in very many cases the school room.

Present day methods of education require concentrated vision for long periods at a time at an age when children's eyes are especially susceptible to injury from eye strain.

School children's eyes should be examined at frequent intervals. Many cases of "backwardness" or "mental deficiency" may be actually traced to defective vision.

King's Daughters to Provide Dinners for Many Poor Families

The King's Daughters, a philanthropic organization of school girls of Waco, under the leadership of Miss Minnie Taylor, will see that many needy families in Waco have something to be thankful for Thursday. Twenty-five barrels have been placed in the public schools of the city since last Friday to be filled with nice warm clothing and nourishing articles of food such as canned tomatoes, corn and the like. These will be taken up today and distributed tomorrow afternoon.

For a number of years each Thanksgiving the King's Daughters have been the means of school children all over Waco giving food and clothing to those that are in needy circumstances. Each year many barrels of such essentials of life have gone into homes where cupboards were bare and clothing scanty and have left a smile of gladness and good cheer.

The barrels will be brought to the Hill Bros. plumbing company during today and autos will carry out the contents to the hungry ones over the city tomorrow in time for Thanksgiving.

Miss Reba Renick is president of this year's King's Daughters; Miss Grace Arbuckle is vice president, and Miss Katherine Mead is secretary. Miss Taylor has been leader for several years.

RID STOMACH OF GASES, SOURNESS, AND INDIGESTION

"PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN" ENDS ALL STOMACH DISTRESS IN FIVE MINUTES.

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief, its harmless, its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, causes flatulence, dizziness and nausea, eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

Closing Wood Yard by Street Repairs Basis for Suit

The case of Mrs. Belle Hardwick, seeking to recover judgment against the city of Waco for $1425, alleged damages, began before Judge T. L. McCullough in the Nineteenth district court yesterday. The case probably will go to the jury this afternoon. The petitioner alleges that during 1911 while she was conducting a wood yard on Washington street, near the new bridge, the defendant city caused the yard to be closed for a period of approximately two months while certain street improvements were in progress. Kibler & Taylor are counsel for Mrs. Hardwick. City Attorney John Maxwell and Williams & Williams represent the defense.

New Ground Made Available on Carroll Field for Sports

After a month's work in surfacing and excavation, Baylor has several available acres added to athletic fields. The ground that has been worked in almost perfect surface lies just back of the new grandstand and the main building and will accommodate a soccer football field, six tennis courts for the young women and an open air basketball court.

The newly surfaced field is a pretty stretch of ground and with the recent development of Carroll athletic field makes one of the best college athletic parks in the south.

Robinson School to Have Program for Thanksgiving

Robinson school, one of the most thoroughly organized and efficiently taught in the entire county, is the first to announce Thanksgiving exercises. An entertainment will be given by Miss Bertha Moore, teacher, and the pupils at the Baptist church.

In Robinsonville Wednesday evening. In addition to a carefully prepared program of music, recitations, dialogues and other numbers, the patrons will be asked to make addresses. It is probable the entertainment will afford an opportunity for the progressive patrons to urge the erection of a new school building. This, at least, is expected to be one of the features of the mass meeting following the regular exercises.

Incidentally, Robinson school captured second place in the Cotton Palace school parade last Saturday. The award was $15, a nucleus for the new building.

FORBES-ROBERTSON PLEASURES

"Passing of the Third Floor Back" Is Vehicle for Unusual and Effective Character Portrayal.

The play was the man. With an unpromising environment filled with still more unpromising character for his materials, a simple, kindly, prevailing personality from nowhere—or perhaps, anywhere—enters a typical boarding house with its coterie of vain, superficial, sordid, spiteful, yet interesting types of the varied human race, and leaves them children of the world as idealists dream it ought to be. This is the motif in "The Third Floor Back," the work of J. Forbes-Robertson, master personality.

A better-than-usual house, but not a packed house, saw the great English actor in his farewell appearance in Jerome K. Jerome's fanciful conception of a boarding house idyll at the Auditorium last night. Theaters goers admit that an actor with a reputation is sure to draw a house in Waco, but a uniformity of appreciation is seldom guaranteed. A casual theatre-goer, educated in the evilest of the theatre, and the frequent high-light stock weekly, is at a loss when a study in "just folks," historically interpreted, without dramatics or even a change of scene, is presented. Jerome, who gave the reading public the "Idle Thoughts of an Idle Fellow," gave Forbes-Robertson for his repertoire, what might properly be called "An Idyll of an Ideal Fellow."

The London cast last night was strong, wonderfully varied but strong each in his way, and strong all together for a central character—out of which character there would have been no show. There was only one star, all the others were satellites with no competition for preference.

Out of material unsightly as ideals go, like a painter's smirching crayon, Forbes-Robertson as an artist in developing the high lights of personalities, made a picture out of people that was beauty of the highest type—the beauty of character. If there be such a thing as sculpturing a personality as a sordid environment makes it into practical perfection as it ought to be, then "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" is true to life. And if it be true to life, then Forbes-Robertson's role is that of a master artist who uses one's better self as the material for a chiaroscuro that makes the personality beautiful.

The story consists of a prologue, a play, and an epilogue. The characters are soon introduced and they remain throughout almost equally prominent throughout—save one.

Introduced within five minutes of the curtain raising are the following varied types: A Cheat, a Slatern, a Painted Lady, a Shrew, a Snob, a Bully, a Hussy, a Sissy, a Coward, a Rogue, a Cad, a Passerby.

Enter J. Forbes-Robertson! The prologue is passed, the play has begun. His entrance marks a chapter. The chapter marks a change.

In the play are introduced:

H. Athol Forde, as Joey Wright, a bookmaker.

George Hayes, as Christopher Penny, an artist.

Ian Robertson, as Major Tomkins, retired.

Nannie Griffin, as Mrs. Tompkins, his wife.

Mary Sumner, as Vivian, his daughter.

Walter Ringham, as Jake Samuels, of the city.

J. Harry Irvine, as Harry Larkum, his jackal.

Marion Grey, as Miss Kite, unattached.

Ada Ferrar, as Mrs. Percival de Hooley, cousin to Sir George Tweedle, Bart.

Angela Cowie, as Stasia, slaver.

Angusta Hayland, as Mrs. Sharpe, the landlady.

J. Forbes-Robertson, as The Third Floor Back.

Here comes to bear the effect of the story. A man living in "the room just above the second floor" who is a friend to man. One who has found the Holy Grail, by believing that the Painted Lady is fair—all women are fair; some are fairer—who tells the Snob that the thing that keeps people little is the fear of being great—as great as their better selves.

The catfish mother reveals that all the world is just a child yearning for the tenderness of a mother; to a shrewd vender of gold brick schemes he unbosoms the fact that the Jew is to teach the world the meaning of law; to all the petty vanity and sordid selfishness of the lot, he brings the message that all the best fun in life is giving.

The personality has proved the Balm in Gilead; then are introduced the characters in the roles of their better selves, in the epilogue as an Old Bachelor, Two Lovers, The Husband and Wife, a Jew, an Entertaining Person, a Maiden Lady, a Rich Aunt, the Servant, the Lady of the House, a Friend.

Incidentally there is a story of love; two real, flesh and blood lovers, an artist and a thoughtful, beautiful girl, and the other vertex of the triangle, Joey Wright, a rich bookmaker, whose only apparent virtue is his wealth. Love wins out, but the story is incidental. There is no intrusion on the main theme.

There is a refreshing bit of humor and repartee, but it does not feature the play and would hardly be missed if expunged. There is no semblance

Death of Rolla Man Causes Calling Off of Arkansas Game

By The Associated Press.

Fayetteville, Ark., Nov. 22.—Athletic authorities of the University of Arkansas today announced that the Rolla School of Mines of Rolla, Mo., has cancelled its game to have been played here Thursday. A game with the Oklahoma School of Mines of Wilburton, Okla., was arranged as a substitute. It will be played here.

The death of Askew, one of the Rolla players, who was killed in an automobile accident in St. Louis Saturday night, was the cause of that school's cancelling the game.

Several of the Rolla players will accompany Askew's body to his home in Minnesota and would be unable to return in time for the game.

of clap-trap; no climactic surprises. But withal there was a noticeable drag in the time element; time elapsed in the story but it melted away.

Variety in characters and in brogue was unusual; there was not a duplication of type or vocation—but it was not grotesque.

A study in faces of the audience showed that there were those who thought the play was "too preachy," some unwilling to voice their cloudy sentiments rated it "too much muck," but the great mass of those who love the true art of drama without interjected appeals, found in last night's farewell of Forbes-Robertson a real sample of stagecraft at its best.

Stasia, a pliant, pretty, unique servant girl, who first fathomed the superficiality of the boarding house votaries, was last to say, "Life was such a muddle before you came—now everything is all right."

The play was the man!

THEATRES

"Old Heidelberg."

A symbolic scene of more than ordinary beauty is the "lovers' marriage" in "Old Heidelberg," the feature of the Triangle program at the Hippodrome. The young Prince, realizing that he can never marry the little peasant girl, Kathie, whom he loves deeply, goes back to Heidelberg to bid her good-bye before entering upon the duties of his kingdom and his marriage with a princess of an allied state. Kathie, too, realizes that she will never see him again, and she goes to the river to drown herself. The two lovers sit on the rocks beside the flowing river; reverently the Prince kisses the rose that he holds, and gives it to Kathie. Her lips touch the one she gives to him, then kissing them, they drop the two white symbols into the water and they drift down the stream together.

Beautiful little touches such as these are what makes up the charm of this old fantasy of quaint old Heidelberg. The very human side of the young fellows, the little Prince in his childhood, the pet of the students, makes a stronger appeal because of its contrast with the rumors of war and the scenes of rebellion in the Prince's province far from the quiet old town and University of Heidelberg. A pathetic incident and one very true to royal life is the betrothal of the Prince to a Princess of an allied state for purely political reasons and entirely without the knowledge of the boy, who is even then in the university at Heidelberg, spending idyllic days with Kathie, whom he has learned to love.

When he learns of the marriage arrangement, it is significant to note that not once does he question it after it is pointed out to him that it is duty that he owes his people. He learns as many, many a royal head must, that a crown, even though it be of gold, is the heaviest cross to bear. This beautiful, unfinished love story will be shown with "A Favorite Fool" at the Hippodrome today.

"A Favorite Fool."

Eddie Foy in his first screen comedy, "A Favorite Fool," now showing on the Triangle program at the Hippodrome, has proven himself a favorite indeed. His facial expressions and cleverly seized opportunities for fun-making mark him a master comedian of the movies as he has been for the vaudeville stage for some time. The seven little Foy's play no mean part in making "The Favorite Fool" a holwing success, and Polly Moran as

MODERN CAFETERIA FOR STUDENTS AT BAYLOR

GROUND BROKEN FOR CONSTRUCTION OF BUILDING ON GROUNDS.

Will be Used as Center of Student Social Life—Experienced Director in Charge.

Excavation was begun yesterday morning on the large modern cafeteria at Baylor university, which when completed by Christmas will be probably the largest eating house of any college in the state. The structure will be of a mission design with a pebble stucco front working out a pretty architectural effect. Practically five hundred students can be accommodated within an hour, and the plans call for every convenience of the modern college cafe. The main dining hall will be 42x70 feet, with the kitchen and lobby making a building 42x110 feet.

In addition to a commodious and modern eating house, the Baylor cafeteria will be in the nature of a students' club house with a roomy lobby and accommodations for rally banquets, celebration features and social life among the students. Enthusiastic faculty members are already planning for the young women to participate in the supper, following the big debates and other college events that are celebrated by the Baylorites. Heretofore the successful contestants have been banqueted by their followers in downtown restaurants where the co-eds could not join in the festivities.

The cafeteria will occupy a position just across from the Carroll library on Speight street and will be close in to the university environment. The roomy lobby will be furnished with heavy-cushioned seats and act as club quarters for the collegians. Set off by brass railings will be the cashier's office at the front. The structure is being erected by the board of trustees of Baylor and the cafeteria will be under their control. Prof. T. H. Claypool and Mrs. Claypool, matron of the young women's dormitories, were prime movers in suggesting the possibilities of a modern cafeteria as an adjunct to the university.

It is planned to complete the structure by Christmas and have the cafeteria in full operation for the term beginning the first of January.

Students look forward to the completion of the structure and are enthusiastic in their comments on the possibility of social life among the men in college circles. Baylor has two dormitories for men, but these accommodate only a small per cent of the students.

Mrs. Sarah Collins, formerly director of the cafeteria in the Y. W. C. A. at Dallas, has been obtained to manage the Baylor system. Mrs. Collins is already in Waco directing the planning and furnishing of the building which will be erected to accommodate the new Baylor feature. Mrs. Collins was chosen to direct the Baylor cafeteria after an inspection had been made of all the cafeterias in the state.

Mayor Will Attend National Highways Meeting in Temple

Mayor J. W. Riggins will go to Temple today to attend a national highways association meeting which will convene in that city this afternoon. E. J. Hernan, assistant director general of the association, was here yesterday and especially urged that Mayor Riggins attend.

"I am extremely busy," said Mayor Riggins last night, "but if my presence at the meeting will assist the general plan or increase the chances of securing another good road into Waco I am willing to make any reasonable individual sacrifice. As I understand the proposition, it is called the Meridian road and is intended to start at Winnipeg and extend south across the United States to Laredo. As a portion of the system, a division will be made at Waco, one road running to Laredo and the other to Galveston. Similar branch roads, as I understand it, will be constructed from Fort Smith to Hot Springs and at other points along the main route."

Representatives from practically all the cities in Texas through which the road will pass are to be in attendance. According to Mr. Hernan, there is a probability that the next meeting will be held in Waco.

All people should wear nose pieces, some require spectacles, many more should wear spectacles who do not. In the past there has been much objection to spectacles, because they are unsightly. U. S. Needs Greater Air Equipment Declare Army Aviators Here

That the United States is sadly lacking in aerial equipment for defensive and offensive work, and that one good military aeroplane could do more effective scouting work than a cavalry force of 10,000 men, were some of the interesting declarations of the members of the First Aero Fleet, United States army, under command of Capt. B. D. Foulois, who were entertained by the Rotary club at their weekly luncheon at the State House yesterday at noon. The aero fleet arrived at its landing place west of the city about 10:30 o'clock and all of the members were escorted to the city in automobiles for the Rotary luncheon.

And so impressed were the Rotarians with the addresses which Captain Foulois and the several lieutenants in the fleet made, that it was voted, upon the motion of Dr. Carl Lovelace, to name a committee to look into the matter of proper aerial equipment for the army and bring in a recommendation as to what course the club might pursue in regard to remedying the defects pointed out. On this committee President Nettles named Dr. Carl Lovelace, E. F. Drake, W. W. Woodson and James Hays Quarles.

The officers were particularly impressed with the cordiality of their reception here and in Texas generally, all of them making the statement that they had heard a great deal of southern hospitality but that their reception here exceeded their expectations. And they were very much pleased at the statement of Mayor Riggins that he had found the advance men of the fleet and the members of the fleet able to measure up to the high personal ideals which high officers of the army had established as an ideal for the American soldiers.

Several speeches of welcome were given by the officers of the fleet before the visitors were called upon for addresses. Sol Hirschberg, T. P. Duncan and Mayor Riggins all told the representatives of the newest wing of the army how glad Waco was of the opportunity to welcome them for a season of twenty-four hours. Mr. Hirschberg said they were particularly welcome because of the various elements of intelligence, devotion and life itself, which they had given to the country. Mayor Riggins told of his appreciation of their personal worth and of the fact that Waco was able to play the role of hostess on the occasion of the first exhibition of its kind ever held in this country, and T. P. Duncan said the city was honored in entertaining the guests because of what they had demonstrated could be done toward providing the country with an adequate defense.

Pleased With Reception.

"I have been in the United States army for seventeen years, but the remark of your mayor a while ago was the first expression I have ever heard from a civilian praising the character of the men in the army, and naturally it is very gratifying," declared Capt. B. D. Foulois, in command of the fleet, following the hearty applause that marked his introduction by Louis Crow, toastmaster for the day. "Those of us who meet the regular American soldier of today feel that the two who arrived yesterday as our predecessors and to pave the way for our coming, and whom the mayor has praised so highly, are no exception to the rule. We have many such good men in the army. There are some men in the army who ought not to be there, just as there are men in the various other walks of life who are unworthy, but they are comparatively few in number as compared with the entire membership of the army."

"We are trying to get our work before the American people so that they will know it better, and when the masses of the people come to know us and our work better we believe they will appreciate us more than they have in the past. We are trying very hard to build up, with the limited means and facilities which we have, a regular military unit to supplement the work of the regular army. Our fleet is the first area organization in the United States army and it has taken us a year and a half to build it up. The highest number of aerial machines owned by the army is 53, and we have been seven years in getting that number and equipping them. I expect this country is shipping as many machines abroad daily as we have in our fleet, and I am sure that number of machines are being destroyed daily in the big European war."

"The only way we know of getting the proper equipment for aviation is to get it to be conducted is to come to you and to the people generally. Tell us what we want and need and then depend upon you to assist us in getting it. Aeroplanes are of not much commercial value as yet, but they are of inestimable military value, and because they have not demonstrated their commercial value as yet, we have not paid the attention to them that we ought, as American people. But during the progress of the European war you have come to learn a great many military terms and have come to think more of the need of adequate military preparedness in this country. We are accustomed to thinking of the navy as the first arm of the national defense and of the army as so many big guns. But we have not enough of fortifications along our coasts, nor enough men to manipulate the fortifications we have, and man our battleships and take care of our interests generally."

Want Adequate Army.
Captain Foulois said he was not in favor of a large standing army, so much as he was an army that would be able to protect our interests in case of any emergency that might arise. Our whole standing army might be wiped out in the first big battle in which it might engage, he said, and this would leave the country in a predicament that it could hardly expect to recover from. The aero fleet is the newest wing of the army and possibly the poorest equipped, he thought. He thanked the mayor for his kind words, the Texas National Guard companies for guarding the machines of the fleet, and the Rotarians for their hospitality.

After expressing his appreciation of the cordial hospitality, in Waco and the other cities of the state he had visited, Lieutenant Bowen said he felt that the common people of the country must assume the responsibility for overcoming this country's lack of preparedness, and inasmuch as Texas is very strong at Washington at present, he hoped the people of this state would demand of the Wilson administration a proper equipment of the aero wing of the army, along with the other divisions, and support the president in his general program of preparedness.

Lieutenant Chapman and Lieutenant Rader contented themselves with references to the hospitality of the Texans and the good time they were having in the state, but Lieutenant Berry explained that it was not enough to merely build aeroplanes and put an aviator in them, as men have to be trained until they are efficient aviators and trained along military lines before they can become of service to the army. Congress has been spending from $200,000 to $250,000 on the aero wing of the army, which is about one-third of the cost of a submarine, he said.

Much general information on the value of a military aeroplane, what part it is supposed to play, and the strength of the United States army along this line as compared with the armies of the leading European countries was furnished by Lieutenant Milling.

The machines which are being used by the first aero fleet are very simple, he said, and as there are only six of them in the fleet, they sink into insignificance when compared to fleets of 50, 60 or as high as 70 machines which are sent out on one expedition in Europe, he said. The average life of a machine in war is one or two weeks, so the supply which the United States has would not last very long in battle, he explained. One of the most important duties of the aeroplanes is to go out and locate the enemy and his troops and come back and report this information to the commanding officers. These are known as the reconnaissance machines. Others are equipped with bomb and bomb dropping and bomb firing apparatus, and some of them are equipped to handle three-inch guns. Aeroplanes are usually safe from rifles when they are 3000 feet above the earth, and are considered safe from artillery when 6000 feet above the ground.

The machines in this fleet were built by Curtiss and are of the same type which this firm is shipping to England in large quantities. They cost about $7500 each, and $2500 of this amount is represented in the motor. Each machine intended for action should be equipped with two motors. Each machine is equipped with an apparatus for registering the altitude, a clock, a gauge to indicate speed, and various other things for the guidance of the operator. On the bomb dropping machines the soldiers are provided with tables indicating at what speed an aeroplane should be going and at what height it should be for a bomb dropped from it to accomplish the desired purpose and, in addition, this branch of aerial work will be taken up by the United States army, he explained. Each aeroplane is tested out for the particular type of work to which it is to be assigned, some machines being peculiarly adapted to one form of work and some to another.

The only training school for army aviators now being conducted by the army is at San Diego, Cal., and ten machines are employed in the school there. When the European war broke out England had only 200 aeroplanes, but suffered greatly as a consequence. The leading countries at war now have from 500 to 1000 aeroplanes each.

To Petition Congress.

Upon the conclusion of Lieutenant Milling's address, Dr. Lovelace suggested there would be no difficulty in getting the equipment for the aero or any other form of the country's military or naval service if the congressmen felt that the people really wanted it, and he felt that it was incumbent upon the Rotary club to express itself, and moved the appointment of a committee to draft an expression or suggest some action by which the work of the aviation corps could be furthered. The motion was adopted and President Nettles named the committee.

Due to the visit of the aviators the address of Forrest Goodman, slated as the chief one of the day, was postponed until next week.

Impromptu addresses were made by W. W. Cameron, Edgar E. Witt, new member, representing the legal profession; Joe S. Willis of the Waco Drug company, Mr. Maddox of Dallas, representing the Cadillac automobile, while D. F. Beeman presented two guests, J. A. Green, aviator of the war department of August A. Busch & Co., with headquarters at St. Louis, and B. C. Manton, member of the local staff of the Geyser Ice company.
